DID MAE HALLEY COMMIT SUICIDE?

County Authorities Conduct Rigid Investigation Into Tragedy.

GIRL'S ARMS WERE BRUISED

Coroner H. A. McMurray Refuses to Discuss the Case But Will Await Result of Analyses—James Kellar Might Know Something.

Special to The Courier.

MT. PLEASANT, Feb. 10.—That Mae Halley, the pretty 16 year old telephone operator who died Thursday morning after having supposedly taken paris green more than a week ago may not have committed suicide is intimated as the result of the post mortem that was held under direction of Coroner H. A. McMurray Thursday evening.

The Coroner declines to make any statement regarding the case, until the chemists have completed their report. Both chemical and pathological analyses will be made and there is a suspicion that paris green may not have been the poison administered.

That James Kellar, aged about 45, might throw some light on the matter was indicated yesterday when Coroner McMurray said "We would like to have Kellar." He is said to have disappeared. It is declared that District Attorney W. T. Dom is working on the case in conjunction with the Coroner. Kellar is said to have disappeared.

It is declared that the body of the pretty girl bore marks that might have come from the intense grip of a man. That the girl had been betrayed is one of the ugly suspicions that have been formed.

"There is evidence that it may not be suicide," admitted Coroner McMurray. Further than this he would not state. It is declared that Kellar cannot be located.

The report of the chemists should be ready early next week and much will hinge upon their findings. It is said that Miss Halley's parents are anxious that Kellar be brought to account.

The Funeral This Afternoon Was Largely Attended by Deceased's Friends.

Rev. J. L. Proudfit, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated at the funeral of the late Dr. Harry F. Atkinson, which was held this afternoon from his late home on West Apple street. Many sorrowing friends and relatives assembled to pay their last respects to the one whom they so highly esteemed. The death of Dr. Atkinson is keenly felt in many homes in Connellsville and surrounding towns and floral tributes in profusion have been sent to the stricken home to express their sympathy. The collection included eight dozen American beauty roses sent by the Board of Health of which Dr. Atkinson had been a member since its organization, and many handsome set pieces, sent by the various bodies of which the deceased was a member.

King Solomon Lodge of Masons had charge. The Fough Medico Social Club and the Fayette county Medical Society were also represented.

BUCKET BRIGADE.

Came to Rescue of Pratt Home at East Liberty Wednesday.

EAST LIBERTY, Feb. 10.—The old fashioned bucket brigade came to the front here Wednesday morning when the line formed by the citizens saved the home of Mrs. Edna Pratt of Maple street. Caused by a defective flue, the flames were making good headway when they were discovered by passersby.

The bucket brigade was quickly formed and the fire was soon under control. The loss was slight. That the entire house did not go is due to the prompt action on the part of the citizens.

MISS MARGARET HARRIGAN PAINFULLY HURT IN AUTO

"Breaker" at Green Street Cause of Serious Mishap to Well Known Teacher.

Following an accident in which she sustained a fracture of the nose and lacerations about the face, Miss Margaret Harrigan is suffering from shock at her home on Cedar avenue. The accident happened Thursday night.

A party of six people had returned from the basketball game at Uniontown in Whitney Solsson's machine. Three of the passengers had been taken home and the machine was headed toward the Harrigan residence with Misses Margaret and Annie Harrigan and Whitney Solsson. Miss Margaret Harrigan occupied the rear seat. The machine was going out South Pittsburg street at a moderate pace. At the crossing at Pittsburg and Green streets, Miss Harrigan was bounced high into the air. Her head came in violent contact with the top of the car and she fell back upon the seat unconscious.

Her predicament was not discovered by the others until she revived a minute later and said, "Oh, I'm hurt." Her face was bleeding. The machine was driven at a fast pace to the Harrigan home and Drs. W. J. Bailey and H. J. Coll were summoned. They worked until an early hour. The accident took place about 11.30.

Yesterday Miss Harrigan was in a serious condition because of the injuries sustained. Today she is improved. The crossing at Pittsburg and Green streets is a bad one and has been the cause of many uncrimonious bumps among automobilists.

Miss Harrigan is teacher at the Adelaide school in Dunbar township. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Harrigan.

SAUF BROUGHT BACK TO FACE CHARGES OF TAKING THINGS

He Admist Making Way With $10 But Denies More Serious Accusation.

Frederick Sauf, accused of larceny by Jacob Santmyer and R. J. Welch, the produce dealer, was picked up by the McKeesport police yesterday on information from the local officers. Constable Rottler brought him back to Connellsville yesterday afternoon. He is in the lockup awaiting a hearing this afternoon.

He is accused of larceny by R. J. Welch for stealing a pocketbook containing from $100 to $140 and by Jacob Santmyer, the bar keeper at the Trans-Alleghany hotel for stealing $10. Santmyer gave the prisoner $10 to get changed. The pocketbook was taken from the wash room of the hotel while Mr. Welch was washing.

When arrested Sauf had only 10 cents on him. When he left here he had at least $1.50 given him by Sam Goodman for carrying coal. The pocketbook besides containing money was filled with receipts, checks and other valuable papers. R. J. Welch and Jacob Santmyer made the informations against the man. Sauf admitted the charge of larceny by bailee preferred by Santmeyer but denied the $140 theft. He blamed the theft of the $10 on drunkenness.

MARTIAL SPIRIT IS RUNNING HIGH

Captain Kidd Besieged by Applicants Who Want Lots of Action.

THE OFFICERS ARE ENCOURAGED

Believed Little Trouble Would Be Encountered Recruiting Company Up to Full War Quota—Many Anxious for Trip to the Front.

As the result of the statement that there is a possibility of Company D being called to the Mexican border, Captain A. R. Kidd has been besieged with applications from would-be recruits, all anxious to see actual service at the front. This morning the Captain had received nearly a dozen applications and indications pointed that there would be no difficulty recruiting the company up to the war footing.

The eagerness of the recruits is considered a good sign by the officers. The order received the other day signified that if the company was called out the enrollment of the organization would have to be brought up from 58, the present enrollment, to 108, that required in time of war.

Colonel Richard Coulter of the Tenth regiment, and Major Henry W. Coulter were in town this morning. They visited the inspection of Company C located at Somerset last night. Colonel Crago was also present at the inspection.

They report that the inspection was of the highest order. Major Farnsworth, the inspecting officer, frequently complimented the organization. Following the inspection the inspector made a little speech to the company in which he said that the Somerset company had no reason to be ashamed to drill before any regular army officer in the country. The Somerset company is the newest one in the Tenth regiment. It was organized about a year ago, after the disbandment of the Uniontown organization. They were inspected last year immediately after their organization. They made a good showing at the camp inspection.

Major Farnsworth after the inspection went to Pittsburg where he will visit relatives over Sunday. He will arrive here early Monday morning and will proceed directly to the Armory where he will conduct the property inspection. In the recent orders sent out by Captain Kidd, the men were ordered to bring to the Armory on Sunday all the personal equipment. The inspection of the regimental band will be conducted on Monday night proceeding the Company inspection.

ZERO WEATHER HITS COKE REGION AGAIN

IN THE NEIGHBORING TOWNS

According to the West Penn It Was Two Degrees Above at 8 O'Clock, But Reports Have a Wide Range—It Was Cold Enough Anyway.

Zero weather struck the coke region during the night and this morning the thermometers were anywhere from two degrees above to 12 degrees below. The two above mark was registered at the West Penn at 8 o'clock and was accepted with general incredulity. At the same time Pinnacle thermometers registered between 5 and 6 below. It was an even zero in Greenwood, and Scottdale reported 8 below.

It began getting cold last evening. By midnight it was five degrees above zero and still going down. The crunching of the snow under foot indicated that a bitter cold night was scheduled. Those who were wise took precautions to prevent water pipes from becoming frozen again, but not all were fortunate to escape a visit from the plumber.

Reports of cold weather varied this morning. The lowest was 12 below, reported near Scottdale at an early hour, not only by one thermometer but by several. Thermometers in town gave all kinds of figures, from eight below up.

The West Penn recorder has a constitutional aversion to cold. On January 12, when temperatures from 20 to 40 below were reported, it gave only 12 below.

The mercury remained low throughout the morning. At 9 o'clock the West Penn's record was 1½ degrees above zero.

The reports from Moyer stated that the temperature was 8 below at that place early this morning. The big water line from the boiler house to the reservoir was frozen up and the work of the plant partly brought to a standstill. Workmen were busy thawing out the line this morning by means of big fires and it is expected that th eplant will start up in full again by tomorrow.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The temperature officially registered three degrees below zero today, a drop of 28 degrees in 12 hours. A brisk wind adds to the suffering. The cold wave is expected to continue for another 24 hours.

PITTSBURG, Feb 10.—The official weather records for the winter were broken today when a temperature of 8 degrees below zero was registered here. At some places on the Allegheny river the ice is reported to be 16 inches thick.

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 10.—The weather records for ten years were shattered today, when the mercury reached 10 degrees below zero.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 10.—The thermometer registered 13 degrees below zero today, the coldest in ten years. All trains are behind time.

NOT AT RESTAURANT.

Police Raided Lodging House Not Connected With Lunch Room.

It is stated that the arrest of Anna Bailey and two men early Thursday morning did not take place at the Fayette restaurant on North Pittsburg but at a lodging house which while in the same building, is not connected in any way with the lunch room.

The proprietor of the restaurant was not one of the two men arrested, as was erroneously stated. He states he was asleep at the time the arrest was made and knew nothing about the affair until he read it in the papers.

VERDICT GIVEN FOR INSURANCE

Somerset Jury Finds for Plaintiff in Sum of $2,000 on Policy

COVERING LOSS ON BAD FIRE

Same Company is Suing Another Insurance Concern to Recover on Loss at Same Fire—Misrepresentation Was Defense Presented.

Special to The Courier.

SOMERSET, Feb. 10.—In civil court last evening a jury rendered a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $2,000, the full amount of its claim, in the suit of the Somerset Door & Column Company against the U. S. Merchants Fire Insurance Company, of Philadelphia. The Somerset concern issued to recover the value of a policy carried with the defendant company on its plant at Somerset which was destroyed by fire on August 21, 1910. The defendant set up the claim that conditions surrounding the plant were misrepresented by the plaintiff when they applied for insurance.

The suit of the same company against the Exchange Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia, to recover $1,500 on a policy covering the plant today on trial. Both cases came up before Judge Ruppel.

In the assumpsit proceedings of Madden & Madden, Altoona attorneys, against C. H. Stahl of Somerset, formerly of Altoona, involving an attorney's fee in connection with abstracting titles to land in Blair county and a deal in minerals, a jury rendered a verdict for Stahl in the sum of $48. Madden & Madden sued for $1,500. The defendant set up a counter claim. This case was tried by Judge Reed.

In the suit of J. H. Rumbaugh & Company against the White Oak Mill & Elevator Company, tried before Judge Reed yesterday, the plaintiff was awarded $87.

This morning Judge Reed is hearing the trespass action of John Boska of Seanor, against Allen & Sher, to recover $250. Boska alleges that while he was on a visit to his native country —Austria—in September, 1909, the defendants took possession illegally of his household goods. The defendants, who conduct a general store at Seanor, claim that Boska owed them a store bill of $47 when he left for the old country, and gave his personal property as security.

H. H. Cassler has filed a motion for a new trial in his suit against the Johnstown Telephone Company to recover the sum of $2,100 for damages alleged to have been sustained by reason of the telephone concern constructing a line across his farm in Quemahoning township. The company contends that the statute of limitations nullifies Cassler's claim, and a jury earlier in the week returned a verdict for the defendant.

SOLEMN CONFERENCE TO SMOKE OUT THE COLONEL

At Chicago It Is His Friends Who Are Planning Ways and Means For Action.

United Press Telegram.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Leaders in the movement for the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt as the Republican candidate for President from 35 States gathered here today to attend the conference called by the National Roosevelt committee.

The conference is entirely voluntary and in many respects differs from the usual political gathering. As outlined by Secretary Sims of the committee the conference which began at 10.30 o'clock was subdivided into two separate meetings, the first to be devoted to a discussion of the Roosevelt sentiment that has materialized in various sections of the country. Addresses by Gov. Stubbs of Kansas, Osborne of Michigan, Vesey of South Dakota and others are expected to outline the sentiments.

The second section of the conference is to be devoted to the consideration of ways and means for the launching of the Roosevelt campaign, and for securing assurances from the former President that should a general demand for his services be made, he will accept. The details according to plans outlined early today by Alexander H. Revell, president of the Roosevelt Committee, were to be entirely in the hands of the Governors, who, with other prominent Roosevelt supporters, constitute the executive committee.

Governors besides those mentioned who were scheduled to report on the expediency of an out-and-out Roosevelt cpaign and to submit proposals for ways and means are Aldrige of Nebraska, Hadley of Missouri, Bass of New Hampshire, Glasscock of West Virginia and former governor Fort of New Jersey.

The conference is said by those prominently connected with the movement to be not in any sense a public demonstration, and not more than 10 men are expected to be present, although all Roosevelt supporters were invited.

GREEKS WILL CELEBRATE CANDLEMAS DAY ON FEB. 15

Arrangements are Made for Observance of the Occasion at Leisenring.

Candlemas day, otherwise groundhog day, passed into history on February 2 when the memorable animal shaw his shadow and went into another six weeks' hibernation. The Greeks of the coke region will celebrate Candlemas day on February 15. The Candlemas celebration of the Greeks is in no way connected with groundhog day for all the Greeks have become good American citizens and recognize the propriety of the groundhog with a great deal of Spartan faith.

The Candlemas day of the Greeks is the celebration of 40 days after Christmas and is a religious ceremony. It is a ceremony of purification. Extensive preparations are being made by the coke region Greeks for the occasion. Father D'Zubay, priest of the Greek Catholic church at Leisenring, will conduct the only ceremonies in connection with the day in this vicinity. The Leisenring church is the only Greek church in the coke region outside of Uniontown and preparations for the accommodation of as many people are being made by Father D'Zubay.

The Greek calendar differs widely from that of the English. Their Christmas was on January 7 and their New Year the Monday following the seventh or January 14. Quiet ceremonies were conducted at that time and the festivities for Candlemas day will far exceed that of the other two holidays.

SENATOR PENROSE SOUNDS WARNING

Industries of Nation Endangered by Possible Political Upheaval.

MENACE IN THE TARIFF MEASURE

Reduction of Steel Duties Would Work Gravest Harm, Especially in Pennsylvania—President Taft May Be Only Hope.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 10.—United States Senator Penrose last night issued a statement sounding an alarm against a possible political upheaval. Without mincing words the Senator declared that if the Underwood bill reducing the duty on steel is passed by the Democrats it will result in the gravest harm to the entire country and especially to Pennsylvania. He says that Republicans must awaken to their peril and that the average business man is blind to the fact that the Senate is only nominally Republican. His statement follows.

"The subject of greatest importance to the people of the United States and particularly to the people of Pennsylvania now before the country is the so-called Underwood bill which reduces import duties on metals and manufactures of metals included in Schedule C of the existing tariff regulations.

"This proposition affects industries valued at billions of dollars and employing more than a million workers. It is only one of a series of tariff bills planned to be passed by the Democratic House of Representatives all of which are not altogether unlikely to be passed by the Senate.

"The average business man is blind to the fact that the Senate is only nominally Republican by less than half a dozen votes. With ten or twelve Republicans calling themselves insurgents this majority cannot be depended upon in a crisis like the present.

"The gravest results to the industries and the future of the entire country might be well anticipated from this condition if it were not for the hope that President Taft will veto any measure of this kind which may be passed without consideration of and a report upon that particular schedule by the Tariff Board.

"Notwithstanding this hope, the situation is still most serious and it is an index of how much worse it may become after the approaching Presidential election unless Republicans everywhere shall fully awaken to a realization of the peril.

"The Dingley bill remained so long upon the statute books and the Payne bill passed with such comparative ease that the most widespread ignorance regarding tariff conditions prevailed in the business communities.

"It is altogether possible that a rude awakening caused by a political upheaval may be necessary to bring about a realization of this great danger by all American employes and employers."

According to Senator Penrose, American manufacturers and American workingmen are just beginning to realize the importance to them of the tremendous fight that has commenced in earnest.

Hearings upon the Underwood bill which reduces most of the duties on metals and metal manufactures to a mere revenue basis and abolishes other duties in this class altogether, have been going on since Thursday. Requests for an opportunity to present their arguments against the Democratic proposition have come from all parts of the country to Senator Penrose, who is chairman of the Finance Committee. Workingmen, as well as capitalists, have made these requests and Senator Penrose estimates that it will take at least three weeks to hear all the arguments.

Philadelphia and Pennsylvania in general are vitally interested in the discussion as upon its outcome depends the fate not only of thousands of mills, whole towns and great colonies of industrial establishments, but also the bread and butter, the material welfare and the future of hundreds of thousands of families.

In many instances the allegations are that the Underwood bill, if enacted into law, would wipe out of existence absolutely and immediately the industries represented by those who apply for hearings. These industries are of numerous and diverse kinds. Umbrellas, sewing machines, steel rails, cutlery, kitchen utensils and an amazing range of manufactured articles are included in the long list that would be affected.

President Taft has intimated that he will sign any tariff bill made in good faith and founded upon accurate information furnished by reports of the tariff board.

The Tariff Board is collecting data concerning Schedule C but the Democrats do not choose to wait for the report of the Board upon that subject. They are going ahead with the idea of passing a measure reducing all duties in the metal trades and putting up to President Taft the responsibility of vetoing that bill.

Underwood and his associates have given no time to the Tariff Board to marshal the facts relating to the metal trades.

Senator Penrose and the Republicans are taking the opposite tack. They wait the widest publicity concerning every phase of Schedule C. They want manufacturers, workingmen—everybody—to tell the truth of the situation in the hearings that are being conducted by the Finance Committee.

Kidney Dies of Broken Heart Because He Had to Shed Trailing Whiskers.

United Press Telegram

STAMFORD, Conn., Feb. 10.—In 1896 John H. Kidney swore that he would never trim his whiskers or hair until William J. Bryan was elected president. He stuck by his oath until his hair extended down his back to his waist and he had to tie up his beard to keep it off the ground.

Some time ago he repented of his harricain and had the hair and whiskers cut off. Yesterday he died, his family says, from a broken heart because he failed to keep his vow.

Marvelous Antiseptic That Draws Glass, Wood and Needles From the Flesh.

There never was known such a powerful drawing ointment as San Cura. Wherever it has been used it has created astonishment. It drew a needle out of the foot of the daughter of Mrs. James Hitchcock, of Centerville, Pa., after the doctor had used his knife and failed.

Nothing so healing or antiseptic can be purchased today. It possesses so much healing virtue that it is guaranteed by Graham & Company, Connellsville, and S. A. Lowe & Company, of Scottdale, to quickly cure any kind of piles, eczema, tetter, salt rheum, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, all kinds of chronic sores, chilblains, and chapped hands, or money back.

It's a mighty good remedy to have in the house in emergencies such as bruises, burns, cuts or scalds, because it kills the pain instantly. It's a medicine chest in itself—a little family physician that is ever in demand. 25c and 50c a jar at Graham & Company's, Connellsville, and S. A. Lowe & Company, of Scottdale.

PHILOS GET COLD FEET; BALK AT CLASS CONTEST

Connellsvilles Were Willing But the High School Event Is Off This Year.

There will be no intersociety literary contest by the High School pupils this year. The Philomatheans have balked on the proposition and claim that as long as there has been no society this year, there should be no contest.

Following the numerous requests, Principal Colbaugh early this week decided to put it up to the members of the societies whether there should be a contest. The Connellsvilles met Thursday afternoon and decided almost unanimously to hold the contest. A formal challenge was issued to the Philomatheans and it was thought the proposition would be accepted.

The High School pupils were busy yesterday campaigning and when the meeting of the Philomathean Society was called yesterday afternoon to decide the fate of the challenge the anti-society people had their forces well lined up.

The vote of the society was 36 to 21 against the contest. Principal Colbaugh made a short speech in which he said that the society had been impossible this year. He said that efforts would be made next year to reorganize the societies under a new basis. The only reason given by the students for turning down the proposition was that inasmuch as there had been no society throughout the year, no contest should be held.

Improving Again.

Rheumatism Advice

Prominent Doctor's Best Prescription Easily Mixed at Home.

"From your druggist get one ounce of Toris compound (in original sealed package) and one ounce of syrup of Sarsaparilla compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey. Shake the bottle and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed-time." This is said to be the quickest and best remedy known to the medical profession for rheumatism and back-ache. Good results come after the first dose. If your druggist does not have Toris compound in stock he will get it for you in a few hours from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take a patent medicine instead of this. Insist on having the genuine Toris compound in the original one ounce, sealed, yellow package. Hundreds of the worst cases were cured here by this prescription last winter.

WILL GIVE $500 TO SICK OF CONNELLSVILLE AND VICINITY

Indiana Scientist Who Originated the Now Famous "Home Treatment" Offers $1.00 Treatment Free to Sick and Ailing.

In order that every reader of The Courier who needs treatment may have an opportunity to test this celebrated medicine, the now famous Indiana scientist has come to the front with an offer to give absolutely free a full size $1.00 package to five hundred persons to prove the wonderful claims which have been made for it. In making this offer the scientist said: "I know that there are many people who have been suffering for years with some chronic disease and many of them have spent large sums of money seeking a cure. I know that these people hesitate about investing money in medicine because they have despaired of ever getting well. Thousands have told me that story and many thousands of the same people have told me afterwards that my treatment had cured them after doctors and everything else had failed. I want to show these despairing people that all the newspaper talk about my treatment is absolutely true. I want to prove to a limited number—no matter what the disease, no matter how long they may have suffered, no matter how blue and discouraged—that my treatment really and actually does accomplish the wonderful results that have been reported."

People who suffer from Rheumatism, Kidney Trouble, Stomach Trouble, Liver or Bowel Disorders, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Chronic Coughs, Weak Lungs, Lumbago, Piles, Urinary Disorders, Female Weakness of any kind, the weak, worn out, broken-down and despondent will be delighted at the effect of a few doses. This wonderful treatment creates a fine appetite and helps the digestive organs to carry on their functions as they should. It strengthens the kidneys, too, and drives rheumatism poisons from the blood as if by magic. That is why people who try it become so enthusiastic.

Any reader of The Courier who will try this extraordinary medicine that has created so much excitement by its cures can obtain absolutely free a full $1.00 treatment by simply filling in the coupon below or writing a letter describing their case in their own words, if they prefer, and mailing it today to James W. ECZEMA ON SCALP HEALED IN 4 DAYS

Small Mattery Pimple on Top of Child's Head, Broke and Formed Hard Crust, Very Itchy, Not a Sign of It Since Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured Her.

"It affords me pleasure to tell of the good Cuticura Soap and Ointment have done my little girl. She had eczema on the scalp last fall. The trouble began in this way. First a small mattery pimple appeared. The pimple broke and the matter, a watery substance, ran on the skin, forming a hard crust which was very itchy. It was on the top of her head, and the crust became as large as the palm of my hand. My doctor said it was a form of eczema.

"I used a remedy but had no success with it. I used it nearly two weeks, then a friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used the Cuticura Ointment, applied it on the scalp at night and morning, and in four days the scalp was all healed, no sign of crusts or scabs could be seen. Then I washed her hair with Cuticura Soap. She has not had a sign of eczema since. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured her, and I shall always keep them in my house.

"I can prove this statement by my neighbor and family." (Signed) Mrs. H. B. Cooley, Marlboro, N. Y., Apr. 3, 1911.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for torturing, disfiguring affections of the skin and scalp of infants children and adults. A single cake of Cuticura Soap (25c.) and box of Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are often sufficient. Although sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book on the skin, will be sent free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 4A, Boston.

A Step to Abolish Hanging.

Johnstown Leader.

Gov. Tener yesterday took the first step in a move which is likely to result in the substitution of the electric chair for hanging in Pennsylvania. He appointed a commission to consider the methods of carrying out capital punishment, consisting of an assemblyman and the wardens of the two penitentiaries of the State. These men will investigate the methods of inflicting the death penalty practised in the various States of the union and in foreign countries, and it seems quite likely that they will come to the same conclusion as have similar bodies sent out by other States—that the electric chair is the best method. If capital punishment is to be inflicted. It is now in use in New York, Massachusetts, Virginia and other States, and none of them would think of going back to hanging. Last year a bill providing for it was introduced in the Pennsylvania Legislature, and was generally favored, but failed to get through because of opposition and largely also because of some other bills which had for their object the abolition of the death penalty altogether.

Should electrocution be chosen as the method of inflicting capital punishment in Pennsylvania, all such sentences would doubtless be carried out at some central spot, and the sheriffs of the counties would be relieved of a most unpleasant duty. In general those officials have carried out the court's sentence with a proper sense of the character of the occasion, but there have been occasional exceptions, one or two of them in Cambria county, where an attempt was made to turn the solemn and terrible occasion into a sort of free show and frolic. There would be no more of that sort of thing with electrocution in operation and all sentences carried out at one place.

Judges and the Law.

Johnstown Democrat.

The Philadelphia Record suggests that the judges of the state ought to hold a convention of their own for the purpose of trying to adopt uniform rules governing the issue of licenses to sell liquor. The trouble is that it would be difficult if not impossible to reach an agreement. For as Judge White suggested to be good is by the law, is a very human person after all.—Altoona Tribune.

The suggestion of the Record might be worth while if the Judges had any authority under the law to lay down rules regarding licenses. There happens to be a shameful, not to say disgraceful lack of uniformity in the rules of the various judges of the state for the very reason that there is no definite provision in the Brooks law conferring upon them the power to make them. The power has been slowly, but gradually, usurped until today every license court is a law and fast law unto itself, with the result that there are no two judges alike, except in the manifestation of the greed of each to outstrip the other in a show of autocracy. Instead of the suggestion of the Record being pertinent, it would be more to the point to urge the passage of a law to take the license-granting business out of the hands of the judges. They are making a sickening mess of the matter and the scandal of it is growing so great that the wonder is there is any respect for the judges at all, at least so far as liquor licenses are concerned.

Watching the Scales.

Punxsutawney Spirit

Potter county, with a population of only 30,521, has appointed a sealer of weights and measures under the act authorizing county commissioners to appoint such an official and fix his salary, if they think it advisable to do so. The Potter county commissioners fixed the salary at $700 a year, and on that basis Jefferson county, with a population of 50,117 should pay a sealer of weights and measures about $1,000 a year. While there is no particular public clamor for the appointment of such an official, it is very important that the purchasing public get what they pay for, and if there are measures in use that are not up to the standard or scales that rob the purchaser, it is proper that these scales and measures be inspected. It is not uncommon to see scales advertised "to pay for themselves in a year." The advertiser may mean that the sealing is accomplished by giving accurate weight, and he may mean that it is done by giving short weight. As there is no official whose duty it is to see that weights and measures are just, nobody knows whether the people are being robbed in this way or not, and if so to what extent. If the people are being cheated at all in this way, it is a safe bet that the shortage would amount to several times a thousand dollars a year.

Carpet Values

Quality considered, carpet prices are lower here than elsewhere. Mean every word of this statement, mean that if you will come and look over the carpets and rugs that we will leave it for you to decide whether every word of this statement is true. Mean that if $3 to $5, to even $10, saved on every room you carpet is anything to you that you owe it to your pocketbook to take a look at this showing of rugs and carpets we have here.

No trading stamps or premiums to induce you to buy, just quality and price. You ought to realize the fact that it's poor economy to pay $50 for a $35 rug even if you do get $5 worth of silverware as a premium. These prices we mention below ought to mean busy days in this upstairs room of ours during the coming week.

At $10

Full 9x12 Tapestry Brussels Rug, pattern that cannot help but please. We've a limited number of these and while they last they mean a saving of at least $3 on each rug purchased.

At $20

Full 10-wire Tapestry Rugs. For over 30 years this store has been selling Stinson Carpets. This Spring they decided to go out of business and these are the last Stinson rugs we will have to sell. This popular musical comedy with many of the original cast, new scenery, new costumes, and under the personal direction of the celebrated actor-author-manager-composer, is the attraction that will please the lovers of musical comedy. The excellence of the book, tunefulness of the music, wit of the lines and logic of the story, enable this Cohan offering to still maintain a high place in the regard of amusement lovers. There is a large chorus of pretty girls and it is said, a cast of unusual excellence. "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway" is an entertainment that stands in the front rank of musical comedy.

It is said that New York is to have a permanent minstrel theatre, which will be under the control of George Primrose, James McIntyre and Thomas Heath. REVIVAL IS FELT IN IRON AND STEEL

Manufacturers Report Many New Orders and Signs of Good Business

BEFORE THE QUARTER ENDS

Bookings Weekly Sufficient to Keep Plants at Capacity Tot Some Line. Pig Iron Quiet With Considerable Inquiry—Many Demands.

PITTSBURG Feb 10—New orders for iron and steel continue to come in to the offices of the local companies and makers are more optimistic with regard to the market for this year than they have been for many months

Many large projects are under way and it is stated that before the end of this quarter there will be a heavy revival of ordering that will have an effect upon the market in many ways Higher prices will probably be asked for some lines, and this will bring out orders that have been held up for a number of weeks

The iron and steel market is in the best of shape in this district, and with the orders being booked daily makers have nothing to complain of, as their bookings each week are of such a nature as to keep their plants running at capacity until after the end of this half

With the ordering by the Pennsylvania railroad of 5000 cars which followed by the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg with its order for 9,000 more the car builders in this section will be given a boost The wheels is to be used in the two companies in replacement

The iron market is very quiet awarding orders but inquiries continue to come out from various source Some trading has been done in this market but the transactions have been of such a nature of to have been put down the public and very little has been sold by the big interests regarding the future

Several companies which have come into the market for their needs in pig iron are the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company including the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company the Westinghouse Machine Company and a number of others While little has been said concerning the tonnage inquired for by the other companies for deliveries over the last half of this year, still it is said that the amount needed by the three will total close to 100,000 tons of one grade alone

More than 75 per cent of capacity is being operated among the blast furnaces of this district and it is stated that an even higher percentage is to be put on in the present month Specifications against plate contracts continue heavy but this market has quieted down considerably regarding new orders There are enough orders booked by the local plate makers however, to make it possible for the local plants to operate at capacity for a number of months

The railroads are again to come into the market for their additional needs in rolling stock and some few inquiries are now announced With some of the southern and southwestern railroads to be heard from it is possible that there will be enough orders booked during this quarter to guarantee continued operations in most of the plants for the remainder of the year

The structural steel market is in good shape and with the ordering of material for the Hell Gate bridge and other large projects the local fabricators are working over time at all their plants The plant of the American Bridge Company at Ambridge Pa is working at capacity and there is enough work in sight to carry this plant at the same rate for the remainder of this half and in fact well into the third quarter Several large contracts were received during the past week by the local fabricators among them being one from the Easton & Maine railroad for 1,000 tons of structural iron to be fabricated by the McClintic-Marshall Construction Company

The tin plate trade is in good condition considering the season of the year and while few orders have been booked for large tonnages during this year still enough new business is coming in to keep the plants working on a fairly good schedule Specifications against contracts continue to come in fairly good and prices are firm

Rail orders are coming in fairly well but not in large enough quantities to warrant the operating of any additional mills at this time The demands of the railroads are such however as to make it easy for the rail makers to keep up with deliveries in first class style

Track bolts and spikes are being ordered from time to time as the railroad companies need them and it is said that indications point to lower prices being quoted in this market shortly

Many of the makers of merchant pipe have sent in their bids to the inquiries and it is said that some of the largest orders placed for several months will come to the local tube makers as a result

The wire market is running on a good schedule and since the advance in prices has been noted by the trade the orders are coming out more freely Some of the larger jobbers who failed to cover for their needs have been compelled to cover at the advanced price and are making no changes on a further increase in prices The tonnage booked during the last week was fairly heavy

HOW THE BALTIMORE & OHIO CUT TRANSPORTATION COSTS

Average Revenue Train Load 531 Tons In Six Months to Dec 31 Against 410 Tons

Baltimore & Ohio's earning statement to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the first six months of the current fiscal year confirms the analysis in these columns January 18 showing what remarkable progress the road had made in operating efficiency during the period

On gross of $40 0.. 387 which is $73 - 092 less than that for the six months to December 31 1910 the road earned net after taxes $11 100,630 an increase of $1 068,531 This can be attributed wholly to a decrease of $1 - 351 979 in transportation costs an item of expense which consumed only 33 7 per cent of gross in the six months to December 31 last as against 36 6 per cent in the corresponding period last year

That Baltimore & Ohio was able to make such a showing is due to a striking increase in the average revenue train load and the consequent gain in revenue train income The average train load in the first half of the current year was 571 tons against 490 tons for the first half of the 1911 fiscal year an increase of 95 tons or 21 6 per cent The effect of this is seen in the revenue per train mile which was $3 17 in the six months this year against $2 51 in the six months to December 31 1910 an increase of 61 cents or 26 per cent

There is little to be wondered at therefore in the predictions made by President Willard upon his return from Europe several months ago that Baltimore & Ohio would be able to maintain its 6 per cent dividend notwithstanding the unfavorable demonstration being made by the road at that time The road will soon get around to the point where competitors will be made with a good periods practically but it is hardly to be expected that such cost reductions will continue far into the future The road enters the third half of its year however with sufficient ability as a through company to insure a comfortable balance over the seven fixed requirements

LOWER STEEL PROFITS THAN IN OVER 10 YEARS

U S Steel Corporation Estimated to Have Made Profits of About $10 40 Per Ton Last Year

As is generally known the average price for steel counting the leading product which steel bars with plates billets rails the tin and heavy forgings was the lowest in the last thirteen or fourteen years says the Wall Street Journal In the shortage in 1898 soft steel bars sold as low as 90 cents per 100 pounds compared with the low figure of last year of $1 09 The average price for 1911 for this product was $1 1 ton the lowest since 1898 Tank plates sold during the last half of 1910 and all of 1911 for from $1 40 per 100 pounds down to $1 13 the lowest in ten years

The average price for 1911 of the steel products above mentioned was $21 05 compared with 6 11 in 1910 and $26 .1 in 1909 Since the first of the new year however the price for almost every kind of steel has advanced slightly the average price so far this year for the products mentioned is about $22 .1

As the prices are lowered the steel companies make less profit on steel sold For example in 1907 when prices were highest by about 8 per ton than at present the United States Steel Corporation made a profit of about $17 51 on steel sold Last year it is estimated that this was cut to about $10 40 as a result of decreased prices for steel

The Steel Corporation made less profit on its total tonnage or for sale products last year than for many years the reason being of course, decreased prices on nearly every kind of finished and semi-finished material Other steel companies made even less in proportion as several were compelled to take tonnage at lower prices than the corporation the latter being fairly well booked ahead and more independent During the up market the corporation did not sell on an aggressive line as several independents who took in some instances orders for material at quotations at cost or under merely to keep their plants running

FRECKLES

Gene Stratton-Porter

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO.

The cathedral was majestically beautiful, from arched dome of frescoed gold, green and blue in never ending shades and harmonies to the mosaic aisle she trod, richly inlaid in choicest colors and gigantic pillars that were God's handiwork fashioned and perfected down through ages of sunshine and rain. But the fair young face and dimply molded form of the angel were his most perfect work of all. Never had she looked so surpassingly beautiful.

She was smiling encouragingly now, and as she came toward him she struck the chords full and strong.

The heart of poor Freckles almost burst with dull pain and his great love for her. In his desire to fulfill her expectations he forgot everything else, and when she reached his initial chord he was ready. He literally burst forth:

"Three little leaves of Irish green
United on one stem.
Love, truth and valor do they mean.
They form a magic gem."

The angel's eyes widened curiously, and her lips fell apart. A heavier color swept into her cheeks. She had intended to arouse him. She had succeeded with a vengeance. She was too young to know that in the effort to rouse a man women frequently kindle fires that they can neither quench nor control. Freckles was looking out over her head now and singing that song as it had never been sung before for her alone, and instead of her helping him, as she had intended, he was carrying her with him on the waves of his voice away, away into a world she knew not of. When he struck into the chorus, wide eyed and panting, she was swaying toward him and playing for dear life to keep up.

"Oh, do you love? Oh, say you love,
You love the shamrock green!"

At the last note Freckles' voice died away and his eyes fastened on the angel's. He had given his best, and his all. He fell on his knees and folded his arms across his breast. The angel, as if magnetized, walked straight down the aisle to him and, running her fingers into the crisp masses of his red hair, tilted his head back and laid her lips on his forehead.

Then she stepped back and freed him. "Good boy!" she said in a voice that wavered from the throbbing of her shaken heart. "Dear boy! I knew you could do it! I knew it was in you! Freckles, when you go out into the world, if you can face a great audience and sing like that, just once, you will be immortal, and anything you want will be yours."

"Anything?" gasped Freckles.

"Anything," said the angel.

Freckles found his feet, muttered something and, catching up his old bucket, plunged into the swamp blindly on a pretense of getting water. The angel walked slowly across the study and sat down on the rustic bench and through narrowed lids intently studied the tip of her shoe.

CHAPTER XIII.

FRECKLES' BUTTERFLIES.

OUT on the trail the Bird Woman wheeled on McLean with a dumfounded look.

"Do you thing the angel knew she did that?" she asked softly.

"No," said McLean. "I do not. But the poor boy knew it. Heaven help him!"

The Bird Woman stared across the gently waving swale. "I don't see how I am going to blame her," she said at last. "It's so exactly what I would have done myself."

"Say the rest," demanded McLean hoarsely. "Do him justice."

"He is a born gentleman," conceded the Bird Woman. "He took no advantage. He never even offered to touch her. Whatever that kiss meant to him, he recognized it was the loving impulse of a child under stress of strong emotion. He was fine and manly as any man ever could have been."

McLean lifted his hat. "Thank you," he said simply and parted the bushes for her to enter Freckles' room.

It was her first visit, and before she left she sent for her cameras and made studies of each side of it and of the cathedral. She was entranced with the delicate beauty of the place, and her eyes kept following Freckles as if she could not believe that it could be his conception and work.

That was a happy day. The Bird Woman had brought a bunch, and they spread it, with Freckles' dinner, on the study floor and sat about, resting and enjoying themselves. But the angel put her banjo into its case, silently gathered up her music, and no one mentioned the concert.

The Bird Woman left McLean and the angel to clear away the lunch and with Freckles examined the walls of his room and told him all she knew about his shrubs and flowers. She analyzed a cardinal flower and showed him what he had all summer wanted to know—why the bees buzzed ineffectually about it while the humming birds found in it an ever ready feast. Some of his specimens were so rare that she was unfamiliar with them, and with the flower book between them they knelt, studying the different varieties. She wandered the length of the cathedral aisle with him, and it was at her suggestion that he lighted his altar with a row of flaming foxfire.

As Freckles came up to the cabin from his long day at the swamp he saw Mrs. Chicken sweeping away to the south and wondered where she was going. He stepped into the bright, cozy little kitchen, and as he reached down the wash basin he asked Mrs. Duncan a question.

"Mother Duncan, do kisses wash off?"

"Lord, na, Freckles!" she cried. "At least the anes ye get from people ye love dinna. They dinna stay on the outside. They strike in until they find the center of your heart and make their stopping place there, and naething can take them from ye—I doubt if even death. Na, lad, ye can be reet sure kisses dinna wash off."

Freckles set the basin down and muttered, "I needn't be afraid to be washing, then, for that one struck in."

"I wish," said Freckles at breakfast one morning, "that I had some way to be sending a message to the Bird Woman. I've something down at the swamp that I'm believing never happened before, and surely she'll be wanting it."

"What now, Freckles?" asked Mrs. Duncan.

"Why, the oddest thing you ever heard of," said Freckles. "The whole insect tribe gone on a spree. I'm supposing it's my fault, but it all happened by accident-like. You see, on the swale side of the line, right against me trail, there's one of these scrub wild crab trees. Where the grass grows thick about it is the finest place you ever conceived of for snakes. Having women about has set me trying to clean out those fellows a bit, and yesterday I noticed that tree in passing. It struck me that it would be a good idea to be taking it out. First I thought I'd take me hatchet and cut it down, for it ain't thicker than me upper arm. Then I remembered how it was blooming in the spring and filling all the air with sweetness. The coloring of the blossoms is beautiful, and I hated to be killing it. I just cut the grass short all about it. Then I started at the ground, trimmed up the trunk near the height of me shoulder and left the top spreading. That made it look so truly ornamental that, like like, I chips off the rough places neat, and this morning, on me soul, it's a sight. You see, cutting off the limbs and trimming up the trunks sets the sap running. In this hot sun it ferments in a few hours. There isn't much room for more things to crowd on that tree than there are, and to get drunker isn't noways possible."

"Well, I be drawed on!" exclaimed Mrs. Duncan. "What kind of things do ye mean, Freckles?"

"Why, just an army of black ants. Some of them are sucking away like old topers. Some of them are setting up on their tails and hind legs, fighting away with their fore feet and wiping their eyes. Some are rolling around on the ground, contented. There are quantities of big bluebottle flies over the bark and hanging on the grasses about, too drunk to steer a course flying, so they just buzz away like flying and all the time sitting still. The snake feeders are too full to feed anything, even more sap to themselves. There's a lot of hard backed bugs—beetles, I guess—colored like the brown, blue and black of a peacock's tail. They hang on until the legs of them are so wake they can't stick a minute longer, and then they break away and fall to the ground. They just lay there on their backs, fairly chawing air. When it wears off a bit, up they get and go crawling back for more, and they so full they bump into each other and roll over. Sometimes they can't climb the tree until they wait to sober up a little. There's a lot of big black and gold bumblebees, done for entire, stumbling over the bark and rolling on the ground. They just lay there on their backs, rocking from side to side, singing to themselves like fat, happy babies. The wild bees keep up a steady buzzing with the beating of their wings.

"The butterflies are the worst old topers of them all. They're just a circus! You never saw the beat of the beauties! They come every color you could be naming and every shape you could be thinking up. They drink and drink until if I'm driving them away they stagger as they fly and turn somersaults in the air. If I have them alone they cling to the grasses, shivering happy-like, and I'm blest, Mother Duncan, if the best of them could be unlocking the front door with a lead pencil, even."

"I never heard of anything sae surprising," said Mrs. Duncan.

"It's a rare sight to watch them, and no one ever made a picture of a thing like that before, I'm for thinking," said Freckles earnestly.

"Na," said Mrs. Duncan. "Ye can be pretty sure there didna. The Bird Woman must have word in some way if ye walk the line and I walk to town and tell her."

Freckles took his lunch and went down to the swamp. He could find no trace of anything, yet he felt a tense nervousness, as if trouble might be brooding. He came around to his room and cautiously scanned the entrance before he stepped in. Then he pushed the bushes apart with his right arm and entered, his left hand on the butt of his favorite revolver. Instantly he knew that some one had been there. He could find no trace of a clew to confirm his belief, yet so intimate was he with the spirit of the place that he knew.

He was most sure about the case. Nothing was disturbed, yet it seemed to Freckles that he could see where prying fingers had tried the lock. He stepped back of the case, carefully examining the ground all about it, and close by the tree to which it was nailed he found a deep, fresh footprint in the spongy soil—a long, narrow print, that was never made by the foot of Wessner. The feeling rose that he was being watched.

Growing restive at last under the strain, he plunged boldly into the swamp and searched minutely all about his room, but he could not discover the least thing to give him further cause for alarm. Every rod he traveled he used the caution that sprang from knowledge of danger and the direction from which it would probably come. Several times he thought of sending for McLean, but for his life he could not make up his mind to do it with nothing more tangible than one footprint to justify him.

He waited until he was sure Duncan would be at home, if he were coming for the night, before he went up to supper. The first thing he saw as he crossed the swale was the big bays in the yard.

There had been no one passing that day, and Duncan readily agreed to watch until Freckles rode to town. He told Duncan of the footprint and urged him to watch closely. Duncan said he might rest easy and, filling his pipe and taking a good revolver, went down to the Limberlost.

Freckles made himself clear and neat and raced for town, but it was night and the stars were shining before he reached the home of the Bird Woman. As he neared the steps he saw that the place was swarming with young people, and the angel, with an excuse to a group that surrounded her, came scurrying up to him.

"Oh, Freckles!" she cried. "So you could get off? We were so afraid you could not. I'm as glad as I can be."

"I don't understand," said Freckles. "Were you expecting me?"

"Why, of course," exclaimed the angel. "Haven't you come to my party? Didn't you get my invitation? I sent you one."

"By mail?" asked Freckles.

"Yes," said the angel. "I had to help with the preparations, and I couldn't find time to drive out. But I wrote you a letter and told you that the Bird Woman was giving a party for me and we wanted you to come sure. I told them at the office to put it with Mr. Duncan's mail."

"Then that's likely where it is at present," said Freckles. "Duncan only comes to town once a week and at times not that. He's home tonight for the first in a week. He's watching an hour for me until I was coming to the Bird Woman with a bit of work I thought she'd be owing to hear about. Is she where I can see her?"

The angel's face clouded.

"What a disappointment!" she cried. "I did so want all my friends to know you. Can't you stay anyway?"

Freckles glanced from his wading boots to the patent leathers of some of the angel's friends near by and smiled whimsically, but there was no danger of his ever misjudging her again.

"You know I cannot, angel," he said.

"I am afraid I do," she said ruefully. "It's too bad. But there is a thing I want for you more than to come to my party, and that is to hang on and win with your work. I think of you every day, and I just pray that those thieves are not getting ahead of you. Oh, Freckles, do watch closely!"

She was so lovely a picture as she stood before him, ardent in his cause, that Freckles could not take his eyes from her to notice what her friends were thinking. If she did not mind, why should he? Anyway, if they really were the angel's friends probably they were better accustomed to her ways than he.

"Must I go for the Bird Woman?" she pleaded.

"Indade, you must," answered Freckles firmly.

The angel returned to say that the Bird Woman was telling a story to those inside and she could not come for a short time.

"You won't come in?" she pleaded.

"I must not," said Freckles. "I am not dressed to be among your friends."

"Then," said the angel, "we mustn't go through the house, because it would disturb the story, but I want you to come around the outside way to the conservatory and have some of my birthday lunch and get some cake to take to Mrs. Duncan and the babies."

The night was warm and the angel most beautiful and kind. A sort of triple delirium of spirit, mind and body seized upon Freckles and developed a boldness all unnatural. He slightly parted the heavy curtains that separated the conservatory from the company and looked in. He almost stopped breathing. He had read of things like that, but he had never seen them.

"Do you suppose heaven is any finer than that?" asked Freckles.

The angel burst into a laugh.

"Do you want to be laughing harder than that?" queried Freckles.

"A laugh is always good," said the angel. "A little more avoirdupois won't hurt me. Go ahead."

"Well, then," said Freckles, "it's only that I feel all over as if I belonged in there. I could wear fine clothes and move over those floors and hold me own against the best of them."

"But where does my laugh come in?" demanded the angel as if she had been defrauded.

"And you ask me where the laugh comes in, looking me in the face after that," marveled Freckles.

"I wouldn't be so foolish as to laugh at such a manifest truth as that," said the angel. "Any one that knows you even half as well as I do knows that you are never guilty of a discourtesy and you move with twice the grace of any man here. Why shouldn't you feel as if you belonged where people are graceful and courteous?"

"On me soul," said Freckles, "you are kind to be thinking it. You are doubly kind to be saying it."

The curtains parted, and a woman came toward them. Her silks and laces trailed along the polished floors. The lights gleamed on her neck and arms and flashed from rare jewels. She was smiling brightly and until she spoke Freckles had not fully realized that it was his loved Bird Woman.

Noticing his bewilderment, she cried, "Why, Freckles, don't you know me in my war clothes?"

"I do in the uniform in which you fight the Limberlost," said Freckles.

The Bird Woman broke into a laugh. Then he told her why he had come.

CHAPTER XIV.

CAPTURED BY BLACK JACK.

AS they talked the angel was busy packing a box of sandwiches, cake, fruit and flowers. She gave him a last frosty glass, thanked him repeatedly for bringing news of new material, and then Freckles went out into the night. He rode for the Limberlost with his eyes on the stars.

The one thing Freckles knew that he could do was to sing. The Duncans heard him coming a mile up the corduroy and could not believe their senses. Freckles unfastened the box from his belt and gave Mrs. Duncan and the children all the eatables it contained, except one big piece of cake that he carried to the sweet loving Duncan. He put the flowers back in the box and set it up among his books. He did not say anything, but they understood it was not to be touched.

Then Freckles started for the swamp. As he rode he sang, and as he sang he worshiped, but the god he tried to glorify was a dim and far-away mystery. The angel was warm flesh and blood.

With the near approach of dawn Freckles toned his last note. Wearied almost to falling, he turned from the trail into the path leading to the cabin for a few hours' rest.

As Freckles left the trail from the swale near the south entrance four large, muscular men rose up and swiftly and carefully entered the swamp by the wagon road. Two of them carried a big saw, the third coils of rope and wire, and all were heavily armed. They left one man on guard at the entrance. The other three made their way through the darkness and soon were at Freckles' room. He had left the swamp on his wheel from the west trail. They counted on his returning on the wheel and circling the east line before he came there.

A little below the west entrance to Freckles' room Black Jack stepped into the swale and, binding a wire tight about a scrub oak, carried it below the waving grasses, stretched it taut across the trail and fastened it to a tree in the swamp. Then he obliterated all signs of his work and arranged the grass over the wire until it was so completely covered that only minute examination would reveal it. They entered Freckles' room with coarse oaths and jests. In a few moments his specimen case with its precious contents was rolled back into the swamp and the saw was eating into one of the finest trees of the Limberlost.

As soon as Freckles was well down the east line the watch was posted below the room on the west to report his coming. It was but a few moments before the signal came. Then the saw stopped, and the rope was brought out and uncoiled near a sapling. Wessner and Black Jack crowded to the very edge of the swamp a little above the wire and crouched, waiting.

They heard Freckles before they saw him. He came clipping down the line at a good pace, and as he rode he was singing softly:

"Oh, do you love—
Oh, say you love"—

He got no further. The sharply driven wheel struck the tense wire and bounded back. Freckles shot over the handle bar and consted down the trail on his chest. As he struck Black Jack and Wessner were upon him. Wessner clapped an old hat over Freckles' mouth, while Black Jack twisted his arms back of him, and they rushed him into his room. Almost before he realized that anything had happened he was trussed up to a tree and securely gagged.

Then three of the men resumed work on the tree. The other followed the path Freckles had worn to Little Chicken's tree, and presently he reported that the wires were down and two teams with the loading apparatus coming to take out the timber. All the time the saw was slowly eating, eating into the big tree.

Wessner went out to the trail and removed the wire. Then he stood in front of Freckles and laughed in devilish hate. Freckles found himself looking fear in the face and marveled that he was not afraid. Four to one! The tree halfway eaten through, the wagons coming up the inside road, he bound and gagged! The men with Black Jack and Wessner had belonged to McLean's gang when last he had heard of them, but who those coming with the wagons might be he could not guess.

If they secured that tree McLean lost its value, lost his wager and lost his faith in him. The words of the angel hammered in his ears. "Oh, Freckles, do watch closely!"

And the saw ate on.

When the tree was down and loaded what would they do? Pull out and leave him there to report them? It was not to be hoped for. The place had always been lawless. It could mean but one thing.

A mist swept before his eyes, and his head swam. Was it only last night that he had worshiped the angel in a delirium of happiness? And now what? Wessner, released from a turn at the saw, walked over to the flower bed and, tearing up a handful of rare ferns by the roots, started toward Freckles. His intention was obvious. Black Jack stopped him with an oath.

"You see here, Dutchy," he bawled, "mebby you think you'll wash his face with that, but you won't. A contract's a contract. We agreed to take out these trees and leave him for you to dispose of whatever way you please, provided you shut him up eternally on this deal. But I'll not see a tied man tormented by a fellow that he can lick up the ground with, loose, and that's flat. It raises my gorge to think what he'll get when we're gone, but you needn't think you're free to begin before. Don't you lay a hand on him while I'm here! What do you say, boys?"

"I say yes," growled one of McLean's latest deserters. "What's more, we're a pack of fools to risk the dirty work of silencing him. I don't mind lifting the trees we came for, but I'm cursed if I want blood on my hands."

"Well, you ain't going to get it," bellowed Jack. "You fellows only contracted to help me get out my marked trees. He belongs to Wessner, and it ain't our deal what happens to him. It's all planned safe and sure. As for killing that buck—come to think of it, killing is what he needs. He's away to good for this world of woe anyhow. His dropping out won't be the only secret the old Limberlost has never told. It's too dead easy to make it look like he helped take the timber and then cut. Why, he's played right into our hands. He was here at the swamp all last night and back again in an hour or so. When we get our plan worked out even old fool Duncan won't lift a finger to look for his carcass."

"You just bet," said Wessner. "I owe him all he'll get. But I'll pay!" he snarled at Freckles.

So it was killing then. They were not only after this one tree, but many, and with his body it was their plan to kill his honor. To brand him a thief, like them, before the angel, the Bird Woman, the dear boss and the Duncans! Freckles' body sagged against the ropes in sick despair.

There was no hope of McLean's coming. They had chosen a day when they knew he had a big contract at the south camp. The boss could not possibly come before tomorrow, and there would be no tomorrow for him. Duncan was on his way to the south camp, and the Bird Woman had said she would come as soon as she could. After the fatigue of the party it was useless to expect her and the angel today, and God save them from coming!

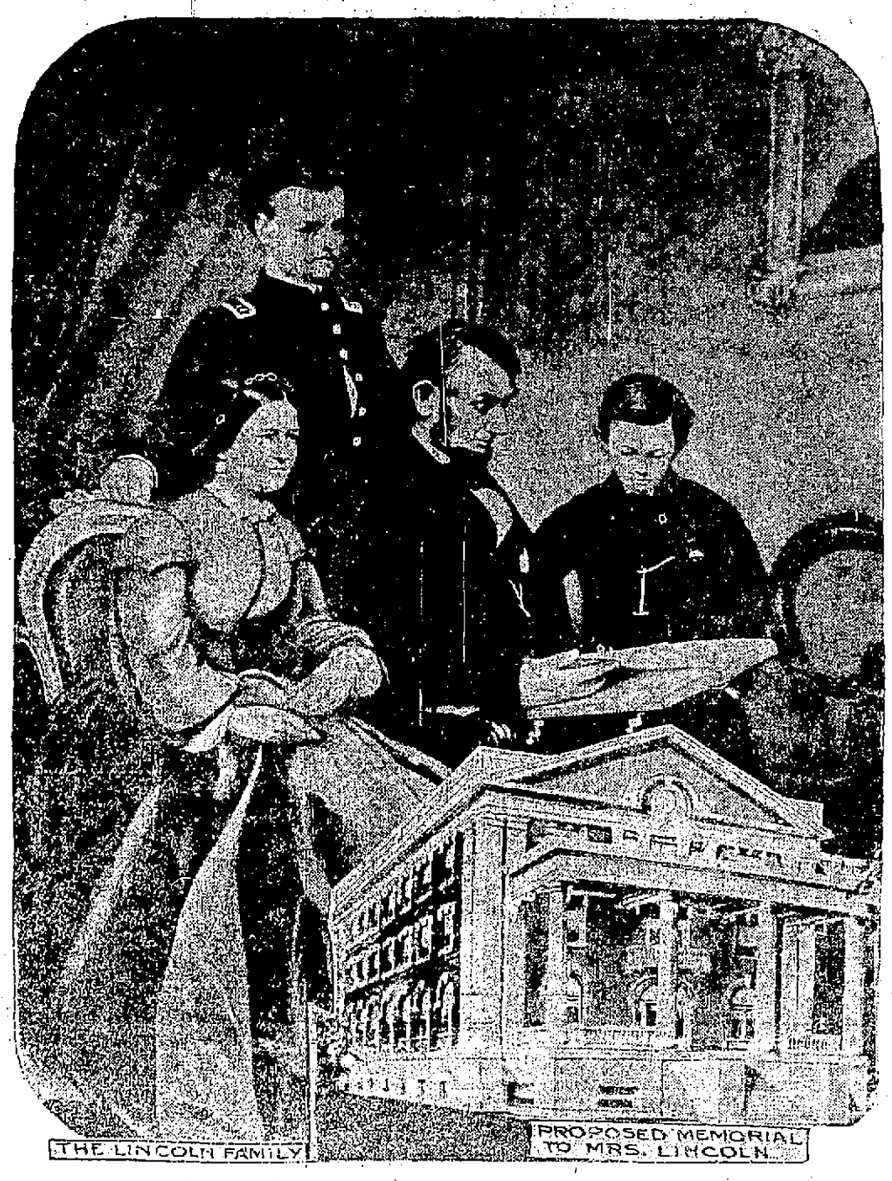
Memorial to Mary Todd Lincoln Will Take the Form of a Building on the Campus of Sayre College, Kentucky.



LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 10.—While the United States government is preparing to spend $500,000 in Washington for a memorial to Abraham Lincoln, admirers of Mary Todd Lincoln are trying to raise $150,000 or more to establish a memorial to the wife of the great emancipator. It is proposed that this memorial shall take the form of a building to be erected on the campus at Sayre college, in this city, which was the home of Mrs. Lincoln. Though she never attended Sayre college, many of her relatives have been educated there. It is one of the oldest institutions in the south for the education of girls and young women. The building that it is proposed to erect will be three stories above the basement, which will be filled up as a gymnasium and swimming pool. The first story will have an assembly hall with a stage for theatrical productions arranged by the students, the second floor will be devoted to classrooms, while the art department of the college will be on the upper floor.

GAMES TONIGHT
Uniontown at South Side.

In a game having a comparatively slow start Johnstown and Connellsville put it last night in a torrid contest the Cokers winning 40 to 35 The score was in reality worse than that for two of the Johnnies field goals were made in the last minute of play

Joe Fogarty was up to his usual stunts and furnished an interesting side show to an exciting game Referee Davis paid a visit to Conn Beville for the first time in weeks The official was impartial in his decisions but let the game get away from him a few times The only real rough stuff pulled off by either team came in the second half when Davis let things go From then on it was a grand mixup with Fogarty playing a stellar role Joe got sore when the game had about five minutes to go and got the idea he was playing the entire Coker team The passing of the locals kept the Johns leader chasing around the cage.

The Cokers with eight minutes to go began to kill time and put up one of the best exhibitions of holding the ball that has been seen this year The whole Coker five were on the jump and Fogarty called time with three-quarters of a minute to go in order to take chances on getting the ball on the toss up

The game was slow at the first The Cokers scored first on a long toss by Cavanaugh and pulled away from the visitors until they had a 13-3 lead Right then the game became real interesting The Johnnies struck their stride and began to rain field and foul goals through the net The score was brought up to 16-15 and tied at 18 It deadlocked again at 19 and Billy Kummer threw two fouls in the closing minutes ending the half 21 to 19

The Cokers again began to forge ahead in the second half Three fouls were thrown by Billy Kummer while Joe Fogarty hit all around the basket with his three tries The Johnnies called a time out at the 34-19 point with 15½ to go and following the rest Fogarty landed two fouls All counting points the Cokers drew away for a ten point lead and maintained this until the last three quarters of a minute to play The Cokers loosened up and field goals by Keenan and Fogarty brought the visitors total up to 35 with 40 for the Cokers

It was early in the second half that Fogarty felt the game slipping away and immediately he began the usual stunt of intimidation otherwise bulldozing Following a mixup between Keenan Cavanaugh and Wohlfarth the entire visiting team gathered around Davis and sought to convince him with their arguments Joe's arguments were not exactly convincing but what they lacked in logic the pugnacious one made up in force Wohlfarth came out of his trance long enough to enter complaints at the official Keenan joined in the ontal

Fogarty had the ball according to the Flood City captain's statement and was standing in the middl of the floor covered in front First Wohlfarth came breezing with Kid Dark hanging on his neck and then Keenan did a hop skip and a jump just like captain with Cavanaugh hanging on Bill's neck with a death grip

Joe's argument had its effect on Davis—a trifle—for when Doherty stood in the same shortly after Joe's arm blocked Cavanaugh and he tried to get around him by using his hands When the double foul was called Joe did a war dance around the basket The lineup

Notes

A typical Coon Beville Johnstown crowd turned out to see the festivities last night Joe Fogarty and his crowd are great drawing cards here The crowd was larger than it the last Uniontown game here

That last little word stunt by Fogarty and Keenan threw a small scare into the Coker rooters but all ended well and the ball game

Fogarty had the ball according to the Flood City captain's statement and was standing in the middl of the floor covered in front First Wohlfarth came breezing with Kid Dark hanging on his neck and then Keenan did a hop skip and a jump just like captain with Cavanaugh hanging on Bill's neck with a death grip

Joe's argument had its effect on Davis—a trifle—for when Doherty stood in the same shortly after Joe's arm blocked Cavanaugh and he tried to get around him by using his hands When the double foul was called Joe did a war dance around the basket The lineup

Kummer made 3 out of 4 in practice and then proceeded to miss the first one in the game

Kid Dark's little superstition about entering the cage proved to be groundless The Kid said "Every time we go in the cage first they have beat us and even time they go in first we win The Cokers went into the cage first last night and the Jawns came out last

One of Wohlfarth's was on the word order He got the ball in mid field and started down the floor Doherty was next and when Doc ran down the floor to cover his man Wohlfarth followed in his stead and Dark was unable to get to Dutch because of Doherty's bulky form

Johnstown only tried the shark game once when Joe did the gunsmoke stunt up to the basket Kinkaide and Keenan are usually the ones called upon to do the army game

The Cokers had the Johnnies on the run in the early part of the second half Three field goals were made in rapid succession and then after Fogarty shot a foul two more were added

Fogarty failed to produce any of the scientific stuff that the Johnstown lad is such an inventor According to the Flood City rules Joe is the only living exponent of the scientific game The blame for it all for nearly all of the late innovations of the game have been laid on the shoulders of the Johns captain

Joe made 16 field goals the night before but Doc had his number to the tune of 4 to 1

Kummer made his last 3 foul tries and Fogarty made his last 8

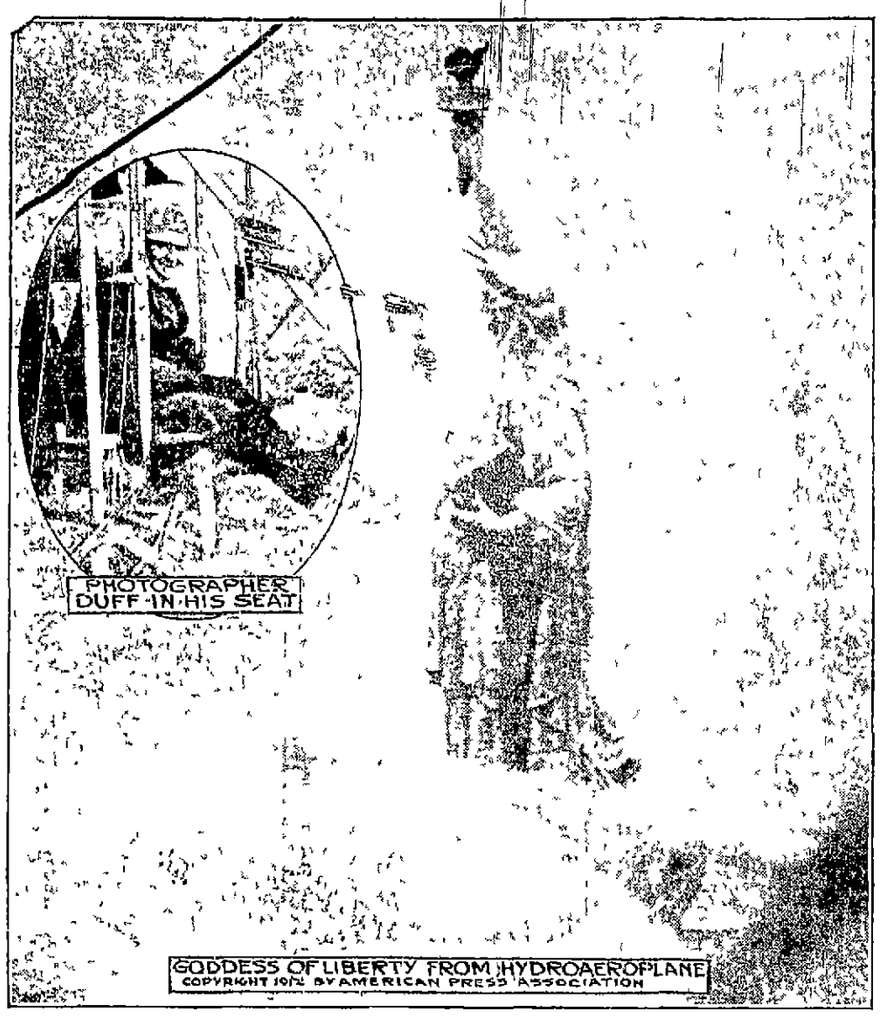
Kummer made a pretty one early in the game He took a tip off from Cavanaugh under the basket and put it through the net Beggs also contributed a pretty piece of work when he took the ball the length of the floor and dodging three Johnnies shot it true

The blind dribble of Wohlfarth was not visible When the time out was started on his blind dash down the floor it was the second time he was bumped by one or two of the Cokers All of his shots were made while being pushed into the cage

Referee Davis is the first referee who has not had one of the fawns beat Referee stunts The play is for Fogarty to block the man after Wohlfarth He tried it last night and Davis promptly called a foul It made Joe so wish

During the off time when he has no referee's assignment Wilbur Roach spends his time at Windber coaching the girls basketball team of that place The other night the town maidens and the High School girls clashed Roach did not referee

Photographer Sailing in Airship High in the Air Makes Pictures Showing What Services War Camera Could Give



NEW YORK Feb 10—Adrian C Duff a photographer for the American Press Association has the distinction of being the first man to make pictures of the New York harbor from an airship Incidentally he proved that in time of war a photographer with a camera could fly over fortifications and make photographs that would show in detail the inside of fortresses their armament and other valuable facts

Walter Frank Coffyn handled the hydroaeroplane in which Photographer Duff made his flight The hydroaeroplane is merely a Wright biplane fitted with pontoons of aluminum which enable the craft to start from and to alight on the water After Coffyn had made two experimental flights he alighted on the water near the battery and Duff was rowed out to the craft which was resting like a gull on the waves Duff took his seat with his camera in his lap and away the craft sailed rising slowly but steadily The machine circled around the state of Liberty then sailed over Governor Island on which there are an army post and a federal prison

There is no question said Mr Duff after his flight that a man with a camera in a flying machine could take pictures of any fortification in the world even to their finest details Of course I was new at it or I could have produced much better results than I got yesterday I had only a small camera and the great difficulty was in steadying it There is considerable vibration to an aeroplane and some swaying and the fact that some of my plates did not come out well was due mainly to the unsteadiness of the camera as I held it The only thing I could do was to hold it against my chest Besides there was no especial arrangement about my camera I simply focussed it at 100 feet and had to aim it pretty blindly But the next time with a camera strapped tightly to my body against my chest I could aim it with absolute certainty and my hands holding to the side rails and steady my body I'll admit I was a little surprised to see what was on my plates in the rush of the machine and the sting of the drizzle as we rose but about half what the camera clearly observed and reproduced

"BABE" CROWLEY GOT POINTS

All-Stars Insisted on His Retirement to Hold the Score Down—Rough Stuff Was Pulled on Both Sides Match Sloan Shot a Foul

The All Stars failed to twinkle in their contest with the Shoe Men last night The final score was 78 to 1 Lawyer Matthews decided it was too early in the game to start nocturnal promenades with his awkward and broke into the act It is a bles'd good thing for the All-Stars that he did otherwise they would have had an awful drubbing Matthews played basketball like he practices law—right up to the handle If scored two field goals for the only four points the side made That he didn't score more was because the All Stars were blind to their opportunities While did Matthews shoot for the ball He jumped around the court under his own basket but the theirs could not see his diminutive so that lost their chance of victory on the shot hand Babe Crowley camped under his nothing and dropped the ball through seven times

Neither Sid did anything on the foul line worth notice Match Sloan made the only two points from this exalted stance There were a few substitutions but not many The players were generally winded The halves were 20 and 10 minutes each but they seemed as long hours to us

Warren Wright broke into the limelight with a single field goal John Young tried to guard Crowley and failed Ralph Long took his place in the second half and did little better Long tried to play a floor game against a jumping terrapin and it didn't work Will Long present and general manager of the men who keep the chiropodists from starving to death broke into the game for two minutes which was sufficient He showed Harold Decker back into the duty Both sides tried rough stuff and both Kid Dark and Ogolt refereed like a pair of blind men Of all the referees ever seen here that pair was the worst They were almost as bad as Red Golsler which is going some Neither one could see a foul when it happened right beneath his nose General Norris blamed his defeat on the poor work of the referee As president of the basketball association he is apt to discipline both players

None of the spectators enjoyed the contest better than did the Coker players They roared with laughter at the spectacle It was a mirthful occasion believe us with half dozen leading business men rolling about on the floor Although somewhat hard on the wind they all seemed to enjoy the sport The line up

Circus Notes

Pat Nurse thought he was playing football He tackled his opponent and got away with it

Cross eyed Match was in bette fettle than If the referee had only blindfolded his star he could play better

Warren Wright's left leg was a better kicker than pitcher by long shots

Alfonse and Gaston were in the act During the heat of battle each stepped to help Sloan and his foot only plowed the yellow dirt

Bob Norris was the scientific guard He even resorted to assault and battery to prevent scores

Matthews made the last field goal It was a pretty shot from Bill Kummer's favorite position

John Young got tired of being the goat and tried to even up He shot the ball out of the cage from mid field

Clyde Downs blew an easy shot under the basket Downs plays basketball a good bit like baseball

Young Hooper and Downs all wiped up the floor at the same time going after the ball

Babe Crowley got several vicious jams into the cage The players have not been spectators for nothing They know the advantage of making a foul to spoil a field goal

Frank Gotham used the knee to good advantage at center He had Sloan going for a time Cut out the rough stuff Doc

Doc Crohan could have done a rushing business outside the cage with an antidote for hysteria
